Call for Papers

Conference on Immigration in the Southeast:
Defining Problems, Finding Solutions
Oct 28-30, 2010
KSU Center
Kennesaw State University

Proposals due July 21, 2010

Kennesaw State University calls for academic papers and poster presentations for a multidisciplinary conference on immigration to Georgia and the Southeast. Papers or posters should promote an understanding of the problems associated with immigration, with an emphasis on finding practical and realistic solutions that promote economic growth and social strength for the Southeast. All paper presentations should be in English; posters may be presented in English or Spanish. Conference papers will be considered for publication.

For proposals please send a single-page electronic abstract including institutional affiliation and contact information to Dr. Alan LeBaron, at alebaron@kennesaw.edu or Dr. Elaine Levine, at elaine@servidor.unam.mx. The Conference is sponsored by the Kennesaw State University Center for Latin American and Iberian Studies and the Center for Sustainable Journalism; the Consortium for Latino Immigration Studies at the University of South Carolina; the Centro de Investigaciones sobre America del Norte of the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Mexico; and Emory University’s Sociology Department and Women’s Studies Department.
